

Inner Landscapes

Inner landscapes – the essence of our world view.

Individual, separate, quite unique.

Aspects might be shared, might coincide but we are all One,
Alone.

Some travel, traverse the land and still never know the Self.

They stare in awe at the view beholden to their eyes yet take not one step inwards to know the self that they are.

And yet, the boundary does thin a little at times,
when the outer and inner touch, almost merge, almost combine...

Annie Lloyd
Writers and Readers Group member
14.10.15